Welcome To Amy Baker Travel

Travel has been a lifelong passion of mine.

Long before I became a travel advisor, I worked as a chef and food writer, careers that shaped the way I travel today. Food remains one of my favorite ways to understand a destination, its culture, history, and people.

I've also been an avid traveler since my teenage years, always drawn to discovering new cultures, cuisines, and experiences. Over the years, that curiosity has taken me to 65 countries across six continents, from luxury hotels and world-class restaurants to tiny family-run guesthouses and unforgettable local experiences.

More than ten years ago, I started Little Travelers Notebook as a way to document my travels and keep track of recommendations for friends and family. What began as a personal travel journal gradually became a resource that people regularly turned to when planning their own trips. Again and again, I found myself researching destinations, recommending hotels, suggesting restaurants, and helping others create memorable journeys.

In 2025, I decided to turn that passion into a profession and launched Amy Baker Travel in partnership with Fora Travel. Today, I combine decades of personal travel experience with the resources, relationships, and industry connections of a modern luxury travel agency. Through partnerships with some of the world's most exceptional hotels, from iconic brands such as Four Seasons, Rosewood, Belmond, and Mandarin Oriental to collections like Small Luxury Hotels of the World and Leading Hotels of the World, I am often able to secure valuable benefits and VIP recognition for my clients at no additional cost.

Depending on the property, these perks may include complimentary daily breakfast, room upgrades when available, hotel or resort credits, welcome amenities, early check-in, late check-out, and personalized recognition from hotel management. In many cases, these benefits are available at the same flexible rates you would find by booking directly.

But the greatest value I provide isn't a room upgrade or a welcome gift.

It's helping you make the right decisions before you travel.

The internet has made travel information more accessible than ever, but it has also made planning far more overwhelming. A simple hotel search can lead to hundreds of options, thousands of reviews, and hours spent trying to determine whether a property is truly worth the price, in the right neighborhood, or a good fit for your travel style.

I help cut through that noise.

Whether you simply need help selecting the right hotel or want a fully customized itinerary, I save you countless hours of research while helping you avoid costly mistakes and missed opportunities. Every recommendation is tailored to your interests, travel style, pace, and budget. When I design an itinerary, I'm thinking about the details you shouldn't have to worry about: choosing the right location, balancing busy sightseeing days with time to relax, coordinating logistics, securing special experiences, and creating a trip that feels seamless from start to finish.

In other words, you get to spend your time looking forward to your vacation rather than planning it.

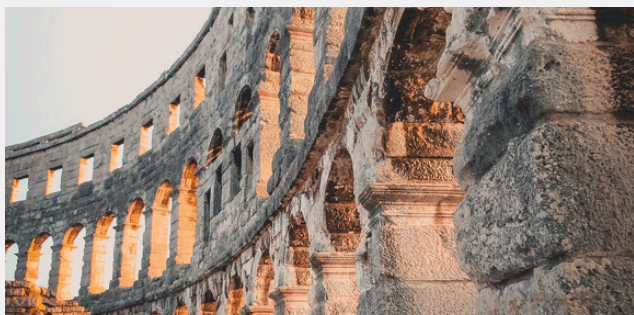

Travel is an investment, and my goal is to help you make the most of it.
